CELEBRATION OF ARMISTICE DAY GREAT SUCCESS

Hundreds Of People Join In Celebration In Mount Vernon

Parade Occurs On The Downtown Streets At 7 In The Evening

Program Carried Out At M. E. Church; Victory Medals Presented

Hundreds of people gathered along the downtown streets of Mt. Vernon Thursday evening to witness the parade of the second celebration of Armistice Day, held under the auspices of the Dan C. Stone Jr. post, American Legion, assisted by the Charles Andrews post, of Centerburg, the patriotic and many of the fraternal orders of the city.

The parade started just after seven o'clock. The streets were illuminated by red fire and by candles carried by the soldiers in the column of march. The G. A. R. drum corps and K. of P. band blazed the way with fine music, under the arches bedecked with the flags of the allied nations, and over the line of march to the M. E. church, where the ceremonial services were held.

At the head of the column as marshal of the parade rode Dan C. Stone, father of Dan C. Stone Jr., for whom the local post was named. Mr. Stone is a member of the G. A. R. and was one of the hardest workers behind the success of the celebration. All along the lines the sight of Mr. Stone roused the people to the most hearty applause, commemorating the great service that Mr. Stone and his son have rendered to their country.

Victory Medals Awarded.
The Victory Honor Medals were presented by Rev. L. W. Mulhane of St. Vincent de Paul's church. Before making the presentation he made a few remarks in remembrance of the great and splendid efforts of the soldiers in the great war.

He told a brief story of the events that had come and gone since he last stood on the platform of the Methodist church with President McKinley, fighting for the furtherance of the measures of justice in those days. He told of how, after the bloodshed of the Spanish war, the hand of America had advanced civilization many fold.

He spoke of the good that America could do for other nations in its finest co-operation, but he warned the nation against any entangling alliances, any treaty or bond that would in any way impair the sovereignty of the nation. "We must remember Washington and Lincoln, and never hesitate in following in the straight path blazed by them," he declared.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Staats of East Hamtramck street received the Victory Medal issued to them in honor of their son, Harry, who was mortally wounded in action on Armistice Day, 1918, by the explosion of a huge shell. He was taken to one of the government hospitals, but died within five days.

The second and only other medal presented Thursday evening was given to Post Commander Paul Smith-hiser of this city. Smith-hiser is the only one of the local men who, by bravery in action, won the Distinguished Service Cross.

Address by Dr. Shields.
The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. W. Hamill Shields of the Presbyterian church. His subject was "Carrying On," adapted from one of the expressions made patent by service in the field in the last war.

He said the boys have made good in the war. "Now it is up to them to make good in peace." They have the great problems of disease and distemper industry to cope with and the world is watching what the doughboy is going to do about it.

"We must support our civic institutions our churches and our Chambers of Commerce and like institutions. We must support the Red Cross and give them larger audiences than was given Dr. Brewster here on Wednesday evening—an audience of 60 people." He declared Mt. Vernon was poorer in patriotism for this kind of support this week of Armistice Day than she ought to have been. He pleaded for a different, far different, sort of thing among the people. He praised the Legion for its good work and urged that it get into the churches and city organizations and make them what they ought to be.

Miss Wheeler's Address.
Miss Clara Patrick Wheeler, Red Cross nurse during three years of the war, serving in the U. S. naval hospital at Hampton Roads, Va., delivered a most eloquent tribute to the service of the men during the war. She paid a wonderful tribute to their heroism through the pain they suffered in the hospitals for the honor of their country and those they loved.

Miss Wheeler, during the war, nursed those sick with epidemic diseases. She contracted tuberculosis, from which she is now slowly recovering at the Ohio State Sanatorium.

Her address was as follows:

"The enthusiasm we feel on recalling Armistice Day is not dimmed with the lapse of time. Two years in passing only accentuates the joy we all felt at the quitting of the cannon, at the realization of our victory. It is true that we in America find it hard to realize the terrors and privations that accompany the occupation of one's country by a ruthless, lawless foe. Belgium had this misfortune and has rallied to reconstruction—a hero nation. They, perhaps, more than we, can picture what Hun victory would mean. The authors of barbarous warfare cared not for the international rules that distinguish civilization from savagery in war. What, then, could we expect in mercy from such a tyrannous victor. Defective as the peace terms may be, yet they are mild and lenient if we consider the provocation to rigid justice our enemies' tactics deserved or our triumph could demand.

"Do we forget the generous heart with which we promised reward to the doughboy? Shall the richest nation of the earth reward its soldiers least? Such a victory as ours must indeed be purchased with both life and treasure. Had you been with me among the maimed, the crippled, and at the deathbeds of epidemic victims, there would now be no hesitancy in generosity. Who will say that the doughboy did not do his bit?

"We fought for the small nations of the earth, we fought against the trained troops of history's most greedy Caesar. We fought for self-government of peoples. Has the world been made safe for democracy? Are there yet nations oppressed after all the price of the great war? The nations yet fighting will tell you. 'No, tyrants are yet in power.' But no one blames the doughboy for the diplomat's blunders. His heart was right, and he battled well for his ideals. His ideals are our ideals and they live in history to our lasting glory.

"We celebrate therefore, a glorious victory, calling to mind on this Armistice Day the valor of our men, the savagery of our enemy, and the pricelessness of our liberties."

Capt. Lawrence Sperry sang with wonderful expression "The Americans Come," a song which brought a hearty applause from the crowded auditorium of the church.

The day, with its fine celebration, was one long to be remembered by the people of Mt. Vernon.

CHAPTER VOTES DOWN PLAN FOR BUILDING

One Masonic Body Not In Favor Of Purchasing The Slingluff Building

The proposed plan of the Masonic Temple Co. to purchase the Slingluff building, east side of public square, was voted down by the members of Clinton chapter, No. 26, R. A. M., at a regular convocation Friday evening. The vote was 26 to 17.

On last Tuesday evening, members of the Masonic Temple Co. decided by motion to present the proposition of purchasing the building to the four bodies of Masonry in Mt. Vernon—the lodge, chapter, council and commandery. According to the motion, if the proposition carried in the four bodies, then the building would be taken over by the Masonic Temple Co.

The first vote was taken last evening in the chapter, and the proposition was defeated.

The action of the chapter probably means that the Masonic Temple Co. will not purchase the Slingluff building at the present time.
